

Casey Dixon

Casey's passion for helping individuals with learning and attention problems has transformed the lives of hundreds throughout south-central PA for over 15 years. As Head of School for The Janus School, Casey used her extensive experience as a tutor and teacher to design a uniquely innovative educational program. Casey has a master's degree in education from the University of Pennsylvania, was an adjunct professor of education for Elizabethtown College, and is state certified in language arts.

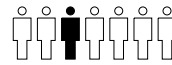

Casey is a recognized regional specialist in learning disabilities—presenting to organizations such as the Pennsylvania Association for College Admission Counseling, Kutztown University, Penn State Harrisburg, Good Samaritan Hospital, Milton Hershey School, and Lancaster Institute for Health Education. Casey also serves as an evaluator for the Pennsylvania Association of Private Academic Schools.

SUSAN, AGE 27, LEARNING TO READ

YOU ARE NOT ALONE

15% of us have a learning or attention disability. That's one out of every seven. Over 8 million American adults struggle with the inattention and impulsivity of ADD.

THERE IS HOPE

I use a rich variety of research and experience based methods for guiding children and adults with learning and attention problems towards greater skill, success, life balance and fulfillment.

Contact me today to change struggle into success.

Is someone you know struggling with a learning difficulty or attention problem?

HAVING TROUBLE LEARNING TO READ?

CAN'T SEEM TO STUDY, DO HOMEWORK, OR KEEP ORGANIZED?

LACKING FOCUS & ORGANIZATION?

DO THINGS SEEM HARDER THAN THEY should BE?
